DELEGATE SCHOOL OF ARTS FESTIVAL

The inaugural School of Arts Festival held on the long week-end, was a great success, showcasing most of Delegate's Heritage buildings, interesting guest speakers and events to suit all tastes. The organisers can be proud of their efforts and it is predicted that this week-end will only get bigger and better each year. The Bundian Gallery opening and the art show in the community church have been covered on pages 4 and 6). The School of Arts was the venue for a writing course, different speakers and movies, including one for the kids on Sunday morning. The dinner at the Country was fully booked and with Sophie Campbell acting as MC and guest speakers, Lucy Culliton, Charlie Maslin and John Blay, an interesting night was assured. Lucy could also be seen on Saturday sketching various buildings in the main street. Pip Ryan who has been instrumental in getting the event off the ground assures us that plans have already started for next years event.

CALL TO ACTION!

CURRAWARNA PUBLIC MEETINGS PLANNED

Southern Monaro locals are being urged to attend two important public meetings, aimed at updating the community on future plans for Currawarna and other aged care services in the Bombala region. Both meetings will offer interested locals a briefing on the significant work being done by the volunteer

Board of the newly formed Currawarna Assisted Living Limited (CALL) and its focus on re-opening Currawarna as a community based model for 'Assisted Living'.

The first meeting is planned for Friday October 21 at Club Bombala from 2pm and another meeting will be held at Delegate School of Arts from 6:30pm on Tuesday, October 25. These dates and times have been confirmed in consultation with a wide range of community groups, to ensure as many older locals as possible can attend – while also offering an evening option at Delegate, for those community members unable to make it to a daytime meeting.

With the full support of the original Stand for Currawarna Committee, CALL hopes these meetings will also be a chance to update the community on the potential for improved aged care services across all levels of care. As such, the agenda will also include an update on discussions to increase the number of MPS beds available at Bombala hospital into the future, as well as an update on the Kennedy Trust project. The potential role that Aged Care packages and Care at Home services might play in future local aged care options will also be highlighted.

CALL Chair, Keith Campbell, says both meetings will outline the significant work currently being done to re-instate support for our aging community, after the unexpected closure of Currawarna in April this year.

After engaging in wide industry consultation and with strong support from all tiers of government, Keith says the feedback for CALL's community focused concept has been extremely encouraging.

"The community-based model of care we have developed for the Bombala region is even being heralded by some industry advocates as a potentially innovative and adaptable solution for aged care across regional Australia. Locally, we believe our model may also be applicable to aged care services in other areas of our Snowy Monaro Shire and across Eden Monaro. "In the case of Currawarna, Bombala is in the fortunate position of having an A-Grade facility already constructed, which will be returned to the community via the Currawarna Assisted Living Ltd structure. We also have a large number of the former staff members of Currawarna who have expressed a strong desire to return to employment within this much-loved local service.

Our community's commitment to Currawarna is clear. Which is why the core ethos for Currawarna moving forward is all about 'locals caring for locals'. Keith says the only significant barrier to re-opening Currawarna by Autumn 2023 is the accumulation of enough working capital, estimated to be in the order of one million dollars, to fund initial operating costs. While that sounds like a daunting number, the board of Currawarna Assisted Living is confident that, through community fundraising, support from across all tiers of government and benevolent contributions, CALL can realistically reach this target.

"To assist with the required fundraising, we will be calling on interested community members to join a volunteer fundraising sub-committee for Currawarna Assisted Living Ltd. We must always remember that in the 1970's, the original Currawarna model and building was created and partially funded by our small but mighty Monaro community. Because of that original community foresight and hard work, Currawarna has successfully serviced our region for over four decades. We can do it again...and we will!"

BUNDIAN GALLERY EXHIBITION OPENING.

As part of the School of Arts Festival week-end, the Bundian Way Gallery has an impressive new display by aboriginal artist Nuundur Guunj, which was officially opened on Saturday morning. Realistic black and white paintings of aboriginal elders, musicians, women, children and others drew lots of admiration. Visitors arrived at the gallery following a visit to the Settlers Hut for morning tea and damper and a recital of “old tales of Corrowong” by Bronwyn Wright.

John Blay and partner Christine came from Eden for the occasion and John did the “Welcome to Country” in the absence of BJ Cruze, who was unavoidably delayed. The exhibition was then officially opened by the patron for the Bundian Gallery, Councillor Bob Stewart. Below Pip Ryan, the energetic organiser of the Festival week-end, samples of the paintings on show and bottom row John Blay and Bob Stewart,, Cathy Reed and Mandy Ber, visitors, who caught up at the gallery opening.

ART EXHIBITION IN FORMER PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

There were many visitors to the historic old former Church on Saturday and Sunday last, to view an exhibition of both paintings and photographic art. The Church was closed for religious services several years ago and it is great to see it preserved and put to Community use. The pews were turned sideways for the best way to showcase the exhibition, and the colourful art was in vivid contrast to the marble plaques on the walls, a silent reminder of the young men who lost their lives WW1. This old building is part of the town's heritage and it is pleasing to know that a group of trustees are looking after it and keeping it in good order.

Strengthening You and Your Finances Workshops

Come along to any of RFCS NSW's five Strengthening You and Your Finances workshops in the Snowy Monaro Regional Council, and hear the amazing story of resilience from The Unbreakable Farmer, Warren Davies, and helpful strategies for recognising and alleviating stress from Trauma Counsellor, Colleen Weir. Warren and Colleen will then be joining local finance and legal experts on a Q&A panel giving you the opportunity to ask questions and share your stories. Topics to be covered include:

- The keys to applying for finance
- Understanding insurance terminology and your Home & Content and Farm Pack policies
- Building Strong Communities
- The importance of having up to date wills in place and establishing powers of attorneys
- Recognising and responding to trauma
- Succession planning and the importance of considering Aged Care costs/Age Pension entitlements
- Resilience, Persistence and Determination

These workshops will be held in:

- Bredbo on Monday 24th October at Bredbo Memorial Hall from 4:30 PM – 7:00 PM
- Cooma on Tuesday 25th October at Cooma Ex Services Club from 7:00 AM – 9:30 AM
- Adaminaby on Tuesday 25th October at Adaminaby Bowling Club from 4:30 PM – 7:00 PM
- Nimmitabel on Wednesday 26th October at Pioneers Memorial Hall from 7:00 AM – 9:30 AM
- Bombala on Wednesday 26th October at RSL Club Auditorium from 4:30 PM – 7:00 PM

Head to the RFCS Facebook page @ruralfinancialcounsellingservicensw for more information as well as links to register for each location.

There will be discounted services vouchers and giveaways available at each workshop.

These workshops are offered by the Rural Financial Counselling Service NSW, in collaboration with the Snowy Monaro Regional Council and funded through the generosity of the Rotary Bushfire Recovery Project funds for primary producers and small business owners. Refreshments will be served at each workshop.

Then and Now, Much Change But Often the Same Outcomes

In 2019, after a series of hotter summers and drier winters, I wrote in Doings,

'Record dry conditions are currently being experienced Australia wide. Many areas that have traditionally supplied fruit and vegetables are unable to even plant a crop this year. This means that food at the supermarket is likely become very expensive.'

In 2022, after record rainfall for 2 years, I must write,

'Record wet conditions are currently being experienced Australia wide. Many areas that have traditionally supplied fruit and vegetables are unable to even plant a crop this year due to repeated flooding. This means that food at the supermarket is likely become very expensive.'

Our area has the distinction of having the greatest 'between years' variation in rainfall in Australia and we break records even globally. This is because our rain comes from multiple weather systems and that we just happen to be on the edge of each of them.

Normally, we rely principally on the 'Westerlies' wind system. It delivers steady winter rain but this belt is moving South and increasingly missing the continent completely. We get summer rain from the edges of the monsoon belt when it extends a little Southward and Indian Ocean Dipole (IOD) also contributes. Overriding all of these is the 'La Nina' effect that we are experiencing now.

The long-term projections for our area are a continuation and intensification of what is already happening: that winter-spring rain will continue to decline a lot and that summer-autumn rain will increase a little. This not good news because as temperatures rise so will warm season evaporation making soils that have not been replenished by winter rain very dry indeed.

Now this year we are overwhelmed by wet soil. Roots constantly search soil crevices (pores) for water. They do this by constantly protruding new microscopic hairs from the root tips. These do not survive exploring dry pores as they instantly wither up without moisture. Nor can they survive saturation because all living tissue requires oxygen to function and dies without it. The death of root hairs causes the plant to expend energy in producing new ones. At best this depresses growth and at worst allows entry of pathogens through the breakdown of dead tissue.

Then, when conditions were dry, applying mulch and encouraging ground cover plants, were the factors that kept soil moister and cooler helping plants to cope.

Now, we must remove mulch and ground foliage in order to expose as much bare soil as possible. This will maximise evaporation and allow entry of air into the soil. Air in the soil encourages root survival and the functioning of essential soil microbes. Also, it is important not to dig saturated soil as this destroys structure, that is, destroys the pores and causes further collapse of the aeration system.

The same outcomes despite the weather. This includes slugs and snails that are always with us but seem to be especially destructive in Spring when plants are making fast and tender growth. They have benefitted from the wet and persist in great numbers this year.

Also, Juvenile Harlequin bugs (Dindymus versicolor) are starting to appear. Whilst wet conditions generally disadvantage insects the milder winter temperatures have enhanced survival of these sap suckers. They suck sap often just behind a flower bud causing the flower to fail to open. The numbers can build up in the garden to such a degree that it becomes difficult to grow some plants successfully, for example they can cause flower buds of roses to wither, demolish hollyhocks and cause the shoots of potatoes to collapse. In the morning sun the adults travel to the top of the tallest plants and cluster in a mating event. The slightest disturbance causes them to drop to the ground. Using this information means that they can be easily trapped. Hold a container (a small saucepan is ideal) with a tablespoon of oil floating on an inch or two of water below them and tap the stem. The bugs just plunge to their death and every pair killed means 35,000 eggs less. They have favourite plants (like hollyhocks) so this means that it is useful to have a tall trap plant in each bed because they congregate on it making your job of finding them so easy. When a hatching occurs you often see a mass of orange red tiny bodies on a log, a warm stone or even in the metre box. A short burst of ordinary fly spray will kill thousands in seconds. (Don't be tempted to put flyspray on plants though as the spray will desiccate the foliage). As the bugs do not fly far the numbers in your garden can be gotten to a low level in a season or two.

Add into the mix, Sawfly larvae (Cherry slug Caliroa cerasi) weakens pear, cherry, plum and hawthorn trees by skeletonising the leaves. The traditional method of control has been to blow ash, lime or vacuum cleaner dust over the affected tree. This abrades the soft body causing the slug to shrivel through moisture loss. Since this is messy and hard to do spraying 2-3 times with the relatively safe pyrethrum has become the favoured control method especially on big trees although newly planted and vulnerable fruit trees can be manually cleaned by wiping the slug off the leaves with a tissue. This is not a favourite job as the slug is quite smelly.

So, conditions do change but some things in gardening stay the same.

HERE & THERE

Many Happy Returns to all those born in October, including Janice Lewis, Shannen Talbot, Daniel Talbot, Doreen Standen, Uland Sievert, Annette Twomey, Val Crawford, Gloria Cotterill, Peter Guthrie, Trina Manning, Kerri Cushieri.

The death occurred recently at Bombala Hospital of Jan Ingram. Jan will be remembered for her great community spirit and her willingness to help out in many different areas. Her interment took place at the Delegate Cemetery, following a service at St. Philips church attended by a very large crowd of mourners. Jan is survived by two children, Mark and Fiona, two Grandchildren, Dane and Kurt and her partner Laurie Reed. Malcolm, her husband predeceased her by 21 years. Sympathy is extended to all.

Also we hear of the death in Western Australia of a man who was born in Delegate. Kevin Casey, was the son of Marge and Cecil and brother to Patricia, now all deceased. Marge Casey worked at the hospital for many years and Cecil will be remembered as a barman at the old Country Club. We understand Kevin and his mother Marge's ashes will be brought back to Delegate for interment.

Congratulations to the Bombala Blue Heelers for a very successful year. The Reserve grade side and the High heelers were Premiers, both winning their Grand final at Bega Showground. The first grade side were Minor Premiers and were defeated in the preliminary final.

October will be a busy month, as following the School of Arts Festival, racegoers will be looking forward to the Bombala Cup and the Heritage week-end at Delegate on the 28th and 29th. The Friends of Errinundra are also planning a "Wander through the Waratahs," with a free bus to the rainforest on Sat. 28th.

It is looking more and more likely that the Heritage Games planned for the 29th. October, will have to be moved to dryer ground. Bill Jeffreys Park is already waterlogged and with more rain forecast the track may be too wet.

The audio in the tin Canoe, in Bill Jeffreys park, which was given to the Delegate Community by John Blay has not been working. However it has now been fixed by John, with the aid of some helpers. The problem was apparently the electronic switch.

Although it is not looking much like spring or summer at the moment, the night tennis competition is due to commence on the 11th October. Four teams will take part and they would welcome some new faces. If anyone would like to join they can contact Ian Sellers at Nutrien Ag

or Michele Ingram
65488057.

The death took place after a prolonged illness, in Woden Hospital Canberra, of a former Delegate man, Ewin Crawford. Ewin is survived by his wife Helen, and four boys, Ian, Philip, David, Robert and Craig, their wives and families. The funeral service will take place at the Cooma Golf Club on Thursday 13th, followed by interment in the Cooma Cemetery. Afternoon tea will be at the Traveler's Rest.

Sympathy is extended to all.

LOOKING BACK

The above photo of the Delegate Hotel was taken in the 1950's, when there was a side verandah, facing west. This area was later incorporated into a billiard room. Note the house on the other side. It originally belonged to Peter Joseph who built for a family home alongside his business. After housing different tenants over the years, it later burned down; Now there is just an untidy block, which continues to be an eyesore.

The photo on the right was taken on the day that a history of Delegate up to the year 2000 was placed inside a capsule in the brickwork of the ramp leading into the school of arts.

DELEGATE GOLF TOURNAMENT CEN- CELLED

A forecast of heavy rain for Friday and the rest of the week-end, following what has been a very wet winter, has unfortunately caused the cancellation of the annual Delegate Golf Tournament. It is a disappointment for those who have put in hard work getting the course ready for the occasion, and it really is looking a picture, despite being waterlogged.

DELEGATE PUBLIC SCHOOL A SPECIAL PLACE

I recently had the privilege of visiting the local school and with four of the senior pupils as guides, was able to observe children in the classroom and visit the impressive Stephanie Alexander kitchen and garden.

The class rooms are modern with state of the art learning tools, and pupils in seats of their choice, no longer desks in rows, a comfortable environment conducive to learning.

The sports oval and court which is marked for net-ball or tennis are in top order so there is every opportunity to take part in sport.

On the Saturday 28th October, the school will be holding an open afternoon for the public and former pupils.

A high tea will be served to visitors, so a great opportunity for former pupils to observe a very different learning experience. There will also be a display of school photos from the past.
